JOSEPH LASKA

Joe Laska is an attorney in the Los Angeles office of Manatt, Phelps & Phillips, LLP, a national law and consulting firm. Joe's practice focuses on all aspects of general business and commercial litigation in both state and federal courts. He has experience in a wide range of areas such as contractual disputes, insurance, labor and employment, corporate dissolutions, intellectual property, unfair competition, class actions, international arbitration, and appeals. Joe is also actively involved in pro bono matters, including serving as pro bono counsel to Little Kids Rock. He has a BA from American University and a JD from UCLA School of Law. A beneficiary of music education in schools, Joe spent his childhood as an avid percussionist. Fortunately for his neighbors, he now just dabbles in guitar. Joe joined the board of directors in 2010 as an independent, voting member.
